Immunologic Impairment in Mice Treated Intravenously with Killed Coccioidoides Immitis Spherules: Suppressed Response to Intramuscular Doses. H. B. Levine and Yi-Chi M. Kong .................................................. 297

The Specificity of the Immune Response following Injection of Bovine Serum Albumin into Neonatal Mice. Gail Soem Haricht and Geronimo Terres ................................. 313

Reactions of Human Anti-γ-Globulin Factors with Digested and Urea-Reduced γ-Chains. Thomas G. Lawarence, Jr. and Ralph C. Williams, Jr. .................................................. 319

Serum Levels of Second Component of Complement in Cancer Patients. Chester M. Southam and Alice H. Siegel ............................................................................. 331

Inactivation of Poly-DL-Alanyl Bacteriophage T4 with Antisera Specific toward Poly-DL-Alanine. Joseph Haimovich and Michael Sela ...................................................................................... 338

Isolation of Serum Fractions Capable of Producing Aleutian Disease in Mink. James B. Henson, Ralph C. Williams, Jr. and John R. Gorham .................................................................................. 344

The Antibody Responses of Rabbits and Rats to Hemoctyanin. Frank J. Dixon, Hubert Jacot-Guillarmod and Patricia J. McConahay ................................................................. 350

Correlation of Immunologic and Structural Heterogeneity of Bence Jones Proteins. Ralph L. Nachman, Ralph L. Engle, Jr. and Lois Copeland ............................................................................. 356

Hyperacute Allergic Encephalomyelitis: Adjuvant Effect of Pertussis Vaccines and Extracts. Seymour Levine, Eugene J. Wenz, Henry B. Devlin, Robert E. Pieroni and Leo Levine ...................................................................................... 363

Loss of Cytotoxicity of Rabbit Anti-Ehrlich Ascites Tumor Cell Antibody following Pepsin Digestion. Frank Whitehouse, Jr. and James T. Kilduff ............................................................................. 386

Reovirus Infection in Suckling Mice: Immunofluorescent and Infectivity Studies. W. D. Kundin, Chien Liu and Judith Gigstad ...................................................................................... 393

In Vitro Studies on the Role of Collagen in the Induction of Hypersensitivity to Flea Bites. D. Michaeli, E. Benjamin, R. C. Miner and B. F. Feingold ............................................................................. 402

Studies on the Transfer of Human Delayed-Type Hypersensitivity. I. Partial Purification and Characterization of Two Active Components. Peter Baram, Leo Yuan and M. M. Mosko ...................................................................................... 407

Immunogenicity of Trinitrophenyl-Hemoctyanin: Production of Primary and Secondary Anti-Hapten Precipitins. Marvin B. Rittenberg and Alfred A. Amkraut ............................................................................. 421

A Factor in the Serum of Patients with Persisting Infection That Inhibits the Bactericidal Activity of Normal Serum against the Organism That Is Causing the Infection. Burton A. Waisen and Imogene Brown ............................................................................. 431

Further Studies on the Anti-Globulin Factors in Human Serum to the Pepsin Digested Fragment of the Ri Anti-Rh Antibody. M. Waller and K. Blaylock ............................................................................. 438
