University of Alabama at Birmingham Tenure-Track Faculty Positions in Immunology

The Department of Microbiology invites applications for up to three tenure-track junior or senior faculty positions in immunology. Candidates must have records of originality and productivity in research, outstanding potential for consistent extramural funding, and interest in graduate and medical education. UAB ranks in the top 20 in NIH funding and offers an interactive research environment. Collaborations are stimulated by a leading Arthritis and Musculoskeletal Center, Comprehensive Cancer Center, Comprehensive Diabetes Center, Autoimmunity Center of Excellence, Center for Clinical and Translational Science, and a campus-wide Program in Immunology.

Current research strengths include mucosal immunity, innate and adaptive immunity, dendritic cells, hematopoietic stem cells, cytokines and receptors, inflammatory mechanisms, and vaccines. Applicants can provide expertise in new areas or extend existing strengths. Investigators focusing on the immunology of diabetes, cancer immunology, inflammation and cancer, and autoimmunity are particularly encouraged to apply.

Review of applications will begin immediately. Applicants should submit (preferably electronically) their c.v., 2-4 page summary of research accomplishments and plans, and contact information for three references to David D. Chaplin, M.D., Ph.D., c/o Amy Perkins (aperkins@uab.edu), UAB Dept. of Microbiology, 845 19th Street S., Birmingham, AL 35294. Tel: (205) 934-9339. Please reference Job Code I-1.

*UAB is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.
Women and minorities under-represented in biomedical research are encouraged to apply.*
