SPECIAL PEPTONES for Pathogenic Bacteria

Proteose-Peptone, Difco

Proteose-Peptone possesses exceptional merit as a nutriment for the pathogenic bacteria. It is rich in those forms of nitrogen which are required by these organisms. Longevity of strains is prolonged and virulence is maintained for long periods of time when the strains are propagated in culture media prepared with Proteose-Peptone.

Proteose-Peptone is also recommended for the elaboration of diphtheria toxin and of the toxins of the hemolytic streptococci. It is especially suitable in the detection of a number of other biochemical functions of bacteria.

Neopeptone, Difco

Neopeptone is free from the toxic factors which tend to inhibit or even prevent the development of the more delicate and fastidious types of pathogenic bacteria. It is, thus, an excellent nutriment for the cultivation of the pneumococci, streptococci, and other organisms which are usually propagated with difficulty. Luxuriant growth of these organisms is readily secured from relatively minute inocula in culture media containing Neopeptone as a source of nitrogen.

Neopeptone has been employed with excellent success in culture media for many of the pathogenic bacteria and has received the approbation of many investigators.
