

Coming soon!

Later this fall, AAI journals-- The Journal of Immunology and ImmunoHorizons--will be changing platforms. The new Silverchair Platform will deliver:

- a modern, clean, and responsive user experience,
- optimized visibility and discoverability of the journals' content for the immunology community,
- and expanded opportunities for special collections, future innovations, and advertising.

AAI will benefit from the powerful suite of self-serve publishing tools, giving AAI staff greater autonomy, speed, and control over the journal sites.

Both journals will be hosted on a shared 'umbrella' site, before branching off onto their respective custom sites. This will allow users to enjoy shared content and attract greater visibility to the newer ImmunoHorizons.

We'll be in touch with more details about the new sites and exciting new features in the coming months. Stay tuned!

The collage features three main components:

- Top Left: A screenshot of the current AAI website header, showing a navigation bar with 'Publications', a search bar, and dropdown menus for 'This Journal', 'Advanced Search', 'Institution Name', and 'User Name'. Below the header are links for 'Journals', 'Subscribe', 'For Authors', and 'About'.
- Bottom Left: A 'Welcome to AAI' banner with a blue background and white text. It includes the AAI logo and a brief description of the organization. Below the banner are two buttons: 'Browse Journals' and 'Subscribe'.
- Bottom Right: A preview of the new Silverchair platform interface. It shows a journal article page for 'The Journal of Immunology' with a title 'The Quantitative Assessment of the Secreted IgG Repertoire after Recall to Evaluate the Quality of Immunizations'. The article includes an abstract, authors, and a 'Join AAI' section.

A large, blue, multi-pointed starburst graphic with the text 'Coming soon!!' is overlaid on the right side of the collage.